Postal Service Rates to Rise Next Month

The price of nearly all postal services, including telephone calls, will increase appreciably during December, the Ministry of Posts announced yesterday.

The increases, which will be in force at least until March 1963, are intended, according to the Ministry, to prevent a large deficit in the post and telegraph services and to maintain the current profit rate of the telephone.

Phone Tokens Cost More Today

The price of tokens for use in pay telephones has gone up from 10 agoras to 15 agoras as of today.

Three old style 50 pr. pieces may also be used in their place.

In pay phones that have been adapted to the use of new 10 agora pieces, the user will be required to deposit two 10 agora pieces for every local call or for the basic charge in long distance calls.

Services. They are expected to increase revenue by IL 7.5m. a year.

The price of ordinary local letters will rise from 12 to 14 agoras, and of postcards from six to seven agoras as of December 10. Printed matter up to 50 grammes will go up from seven to eight agoras, but the price for heavier parcels of printed matter will be reduced from seven to four agoras for every additional 50 gm.

Foreign Mail

The price of air mail letters and postcards will be raised by five agoras and printed matter air-mailed (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Israel to Be Full Member of Gatt

Jerusalem Post Correspondent. PARIS. — Israel's admission as a full member of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs, to which she hitherto belonged on a "temporary" basis, is due to be officially announced at the close of the current meeting of Gatt Trade Ministers, it is learned here.

It is understood that Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and West Germany are sympathetic to Israel's complaint of discrimination by the Common Market. Italy, herself an orange-grower, is also sympathetic to Israel's complaint of discrimination by the Common Market.

Within this framework the Histadrut has little choice but to encourage workers in productive occupations to work more, and to endeavour to maintain wage differentials at their present level.

The chaotic situation as regards many categories of employees might be eased with the aid of Mr. Meshel's scheme to create a permanent contractual framework for civil servants to be renewed every two years.

It might make for less violent shocks to the system than the present method of apparently permanent scales that are periodically upgraded under pressure and threat of strikes.

Up to now there has been a total lack of objective criteria for civil servants' wages, which simply rose as the result of other categories of workers succeeding in improving their position. The proposed biennial civil servants' contract would also provide for a panel of agreed arbitrators before whom disputes could be brought.

This would be a revolutionary step in view of previous bitter union opposition, but it would be backed around with the provision that the panel would operate only during the term of the contract's validity.

Further, Mr. Meshel's announcement that elections will be held for the first time within the civil servants' union, in place of the existing system of officials, will not only help improve labour relations in government offices but also put teeth into union democracy, where the party key has too long ruled supreme.

The recent apparent breakdown in communications between the Histadrut leadership and rank and file which resulted in the uproar over the membership fee increase will have to serve as a warning to Mr. Meshel and his colleagues. The best-derived programmes will operate in a democratic society only when an informed public recognizes them and is ready to carry them out. Any new scheme now proposed will also have to be studied at grass-roots level in works and office committees and generally approved before it is applied. This is a necessary revolution, and one that might restore labour stability and improve relations between them and their employers.

Danish Premier Due In January

The Danish Prime Minister, Mr. Viggo Kampmann, has accepted Mr. Ben-Gurion's invitation and is to visit Israel with Mrs. Kampmann from next January 10 to 16. It was announced in Jerusalem early this morning. The invitation was extended in June, after the Foreign Minister, Golda Meir's visit to Denmark.

Mr. Kampmann, 51, is an economist. After holding various positions in the Danish civil service, he became head of the Government Economic Secretariat, President of the Royal Mortgage Bank of Denmark and then Minister of Finance. He became Prime Minister in February 1962 on the death of Mr. H. C. Hansen. In last year's elections he increased his party's vote but was still compelled to rule in coalition with the radicals.

Swiss Still Trying To Contact 'Spies'

CAIRO (Reuters). — Interrogation of the 13 persons, including four French officials, arrested on various charges of espionage, the supplying of information and plotting the assassination of Abdul Nasser, continued yesterday after reports that a request for the officials' release had been rejected.

A Swiss spokesman said his Embassy was still hopeful of contacting the officials, who were arrested six days ago. Switzerland is handling French interests since the break in diplomatic ties between France and Egypt in 1956.

Meanwhile observers are carefully studying the spate of announcements, alleged confessions and other documents released since the arrests, trying to predict the precise nature of the indictment which is expected to be drawn up next week. Some observers believe the men will stand trial though others suggested they may be expelled.

The influential Cairo newspaper "Al-Ahram" reported yesterday that "all possible measures" will be taken to prevent the regime and communicating with foreign country during time of war.

The four officials are M. Andre Mitter, Henri Mouton, Jean-Paul Bellivier and Andre Michel — all members of criminal conspiracy to overthrow the regime and communicating with foreign country during time of war.

M. Bellivier and M. Arlette Paulette, Secretary to the mission who was also arrested, said here yesterday that Tuesday night that they were involved in the collection and transmission of French political, economic and social information.

In Paris, an official said that the French Cabinet yesterday discussed "all possible measures" of recourse and retaliation "against the Egyptian Government over the arrest of the four officials. Mr. Christian de la Motte, Secretary of State for Information, said that among the measures discussed was an appeal to the International Court at The Hague.

Operation Toy Fund Begins

Six police vans deployed from Jerusalem and Haifa early yesterday to deliver their loads of Hanukkah cheer and Jerusalem Post Toy Fund gifts to children in 423 outlying and border settlements.

There the police turned the packages of toys, each accompanied by a toy wheelbarrow, over to the kindergarten teacher.

The reaction of the children was generally the same: shouts of glee with hands opening wide to receive the gifts, and distracted and inquisitive glances (but the thanks were louder and more distinct when the teacher prompted them). In some places, however, generally those where the kindergarten was bare of toys — the children stood around in stunned silence and ever-widening eyes as the toys were unpacked.

Constable Moshe Tanuri, who has been going out on Operation Toy Fund ever since the police took the task over from the Army eight years ago — was eagerly awaited in many Jerusalem kindergartens.

4 JEWS MURDERED BY FLN FIVE MOSLEMS LYNCHED

By MAURICE CARR, Jerusalem Post Correspondent. FLN terrorists killed four Jews in Constantine yesterday and wounded a fifth in Sidi Bel Abbes as he was leaving synagogue.

Reuter reports from Oran that rioting Europeans lynched five Moslems and wounded 15 in a day of violence here yesterday which followed the killing of a European by Moslem gunmen.

Tanks and armoured cars moved into the town centre, training their cannon along the Boulevard Joffre dividing the Moslem and Jewish quarters. Thousands of riot police blocked roads leading to the Moslem new town.

Despite the police precautions, groups of Europeans roamed the town, chasing Moslems, beating some to death and shooting at others. They started fires and then tried to prevent firemen extinguishing them.

Knesset Rejects Bid to Debate Sale of Arms to Germany

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter. The Knesset yesterday decided by a large majority not to debate the question of arms sales to West Germany. The Liberals voted in accordance with their Coalition agreement on the subject.

The matter was raised in motions for the agenda by Mr. Shmuel Mikuni (Communist), Mr. Haim Landau (Herut), and Mr. Israel Barzilai (Mapam).

With slight variations, they put forward essentially the same arguments. They disagreed with the Prime Minister's contention that Germany has changed, and with his contention that it is vital to Israel's security that it sell arms to Germany.

Barzilai said that in the six years he had been in the Cabinet he had never heard that any country makes its arms sales to Israel conditional on the sale of arms to it by Israel.

The three speakers said that ex-Nazi and neo-Nazi occupied a prominent place in the Bonn Government, in the Reichswehr and in the Parliament. In this connection, they singled out the Foreign Minister, Mr. Schroeder. Of the 499 deputies in the Bundestag, 100 have a Nazi past, Mr. Landau said. Under the new Bonn Cabinet's coalition agreement, former Nazis and S.S. members will be permitted to take their place in the Bonn Government.

While the Knesset had discussed the matter before, these developments, and the Bonn Government's policy of new invasion or counter-revolutionary plot against his regime.

Making one of his first speeches in the Knesset, Dr. Castro Tuesday night said: "Rejected as 'Cynical and shameless blackmail' a Guatemalan demand for the release of a Guatemalan President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman has expelled from Cuba."

US Chimp Blazes Space Trail, Returns after Two Orbits

CAPE CANAVERAL, Florida (Reuters). — A calm, hard-working chimpanzee flashed twice round the earth yesterday but was brought back safely some 80 minutes before schedule because of overheating of mechanism inside the capsule.

The chimp, a 5½ year-old male named Enos, blazed a path for America's first manned orbital flight, expected within the next few weeks.

He performed his tasks perfectly, strapped into the capsule launched from here atop a 55-foot Atlas rocket.

Latest reports say Enos was in good condition when his capsule was picked up from the ocean about 500 miles south-east of Bermuda after orbiting for about three hours. He came down by parachute and a search plane, which signalled recovery ships deployed in the area.

The capsule was brought down by means of retro rockets and parachutes after an inverter in the cockpit, which changes electric current from D.C. to A.C. apparently overheated. It had been planned for Enos to make three orbits.

The chimpanzee was chosen for his calm and intelligence during trials. He was described as having a "working, plugging type" of superior intelligence. He weighs 37½ pounds.

During yesterday's flight he was subjected to high blast-off forces, then worked at a waist-high shelf with three levers below three display panels. He was trained to react to a coloured light by touching the correct lever.

UN Ghurka's Body Found in Katanga

ELIZABETHTOWN, Swaziland. — U.N. patrols with tracker dogs yesterday found the stabbed body of a Ghurka driver, missing after Tuesday night's violent assault by Katanga soldiers on U.N. officials, a Briton and an Australian.

The murdered driver had multiple wounds. Major Arjet Singh of the Gurkha Regiment is still missing.

Doctors at the Italian U.N. hospital here said the condition of Mr. Brian Urquhart, 42, one of the two men dragged out of a diplomatic dinner party and beaten with rifle butts, was "satisfactory" yesterday morning. He had broken ribs, a broken nose, head cuts and bruises.

Mr. George Smith, Acting Chief U.N. representative here, was also beaten up by Katanga paramilitary forces Tuesday night, said he had sent the Katanga Government "a stiff note of protest" about the murder of the Gurkha driver and asked what steps were being taken to find the missing major.

During yesterday's flight he was subjected to high blast-off forces, then worked at a waist-high shelf with three levers below three display panels. He was trained to react to a coloured light by touching the correct lever.

Phone Book's Poor Binding 'a Mistake'

The poor binding on the new telephone directories was a mistake on the part of the Government Printer, Minister of Posts Eliahu Sasson told the Knesset yesterday.

Mr. Sasson said that after 50,000 copies of the directory had been distributed, the Ministry became aware of the poor binding, and 10,000 copies still in stock were returned for rebinding.

This stock had been meant for public telephone booths and for new subscribers.

Subscribers whose directories fall apart from frequent use may exchange them for re-bound copies as long as they are available, Mr. Sasson said.

Postal Rates

abroad will be raised by three agoras. These increases will come into effect on January 1.

The airtel rate will not be changed.

Ordinary surface mail abroad will go up by two agoras to 20 agoras. The price of postcards and printed matter will remain the same.

Local telegrams will go up from 70 agoras to 111 for the first 10 words and from 60 to 90 agoras for the remainder.

There will be no change in the rate for cablegrams.

The rate for local parcel post will rise proportionately with increases for locally published books and records being somewhat less. There will be no change in rates for parcels sent abroad.

Telephone Charges

All local calls will go up from 85 agoras to 100 agoras, with the 20 per cent defence surtax applied to the new price. This will also apply to inter-urban calls which are automatically recorded at the exchange. These increases will come into effect as of tomorrow, December 1.

Inter-urban calls placed through operators will also go up proportionately (by about 17 per cent), and will come into effect on December 10.

The charge for installing a telephone and the bi-monthly rental charge will not be changed. It is understood that the new rates will remain in force until the end of the following fiscal year (March 1963) also affect the present telephone installation and rental charges, despite rumors of a rise in the installation charge.

Charges for postal money orders and other Postal Bank transactions will also rise as of tomorrow.

Task of Zionist Movement Far from Finished—Goldmann

NEW YORK (Reuters).—"To believe that the Zionist movement has fulfilled its major task by having brought about the creation of the State of Israel is a shortsighted and dangerous illusion, entertained unfortunately, by many, both in Israel and the Diaspora," Dr. Nahum Goldmann, President of the World Zionist Organization told a Zionist dinner Tuesday night.

The dinner marked the 14th anniversary of the passage by the U.N. Assembly of the resolution establishing the State of Israel.

"The State is established and flourishing but the two major problems which will determine its future and its historical destiny are far from solved," Dr. Goldmann said.

"One concerns the physical and economic consolidation and survival of Israel, and the second one the forging of ties between the Jewish communities in the world and Israel which would make the State a true Jewish State."

Dr. Goldmann said that the Jewish people and the Jewish State are playing the same role Zionism has played in organizing the Jewish people in its fight for the emergence of the state, he said.

17 Africans, Asians At Medical School

The flags of Nepal, Nigeria, Liberia, Ethiopia and Sierra Leone, as well as the Union Jack representing Kenya, Basutoland and Southern Rhodesia, occupied a place of honor in the main Lecture Hall of the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School on Tuesday when 17 African students (including one girl from Nigeria) were welcomed on the eve of their starting medical studies at the school.

Prof. A. L. Olitaki, Dean of the Medical School, assured the students that they would be given the best that the School could offer in the way of medical education.

Prof. Jack Gross, who is chairman of the Medical School's committee dealing with students from developing countries, stressed that the students would be given the same high level instruction as their Israeli colleagues.

The ultimate aim was not only to train doctors but also teachers of medicine, and he hoped that among the group were some who would be sufficiently attracted to turn to this vocation.

The gathering then proceeded to the group's special teaching quarters at the School, consisting of two main laboratories for ten and eight students respectively, a lecture and library room, teachers' rooms, etc.

For the first year and a half, the students will devote themselves to pre-clinical studies in the basic sciences, and the laboratories have been so arranged that it will be possible to adapt them easily to the needs of all pre-clinical instruction, except anatomy.

In addition to their medical studies, which will be conducted in English, the African and Asian students will be taking intensive courses in Hebrew. Like all medical students they will also attend English courses, including English literature.

House Rejects Motions On Killing of Five Arab Youths

POST Knesset Reporter

The Knesset yesterday rejected motions for the agenda dealing with the killing of five Arab youths on the Gaza border in which five Arab youths lost their lives on September 18-19, and with the border incidents and the problems of Arab youth.

The first motion was submitted by Mr. Emil Habibi (Communist) and the second by Mr. Ya'acov Hazan (Mapai).

Mr. Habibi said that the circumstances of the shooting of the youths should be examined by a parliamentary committee of inquiry.

However, the Minister of Education, Mr. Abba Eban, said that the early suspicion that the Border Police may not have acted properly had been proved unfounded.

He said that the investigation of Arab youth, who felt they had no future here, deserved consideration by the Knesset.

Replying, the Prime Minister said that the two questions linked by Mr. Hazan were entirely unconnected. If a debate was wanted on the problems of Arab youth, that should be presented on its own merits. And if there were differences in the extent of education between Arab youth and Jewish youth, there were also wide gaps between the various sections of the Jewish community in this respect.

With regard to Mr. Habibi's motion, the Prime Minister noted that the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee had devoted two meetings to the subject. It had issued a statement saying that the men were shot while trying to infiltrate into the Gaza Strip and that the rumors of mutilations were slander disseminated by elements hostile to the state.

There was no support for either motion by any party other than those of the respective sponsors.

Kahana Presented As Deputy Minister

POST Knesset Reporter

The appointment of Rabbi Kalman Kahana (Poalei Agudat Yisrael) as Deputy Minister of Education, was announced in the Knesset yesterday by the Minister Mr. Abba Eban.

In answer to questions, Rabbi Kahana said last night that he had not been placed in charge of any specific duties in the Ministry but that as Deputy Minister and member of the Ministry's management, he would take part in formulation of policy.

It had been reported that delay in the announcement of Rabbi Kahana's appointment was due to differences of opinion as to his duties in the Ministry.

Survey Shows Trucks Under-Exploited

POST Economic Reporter

A study just released by the Central Bureau of Statistics shows that trucks in Israel are under-exploited.

The average number of runs during the week was 22 per lorry, comprising 350 kilometers. Half of the journeys were made without a load, and a third of the vehicles travelled less than 200 kilometers a week, with or without loads.

A higher rate of utilization was shown for heavier trucks, which operated for more days per week, and for fewer but longer trips.

The low rate of lorry utilization revealed by the survey gives new urgency to the Transport Ministry's project for increasing the use of trucks centrally on a regional basis.

Acropolis Mental Patients to be Moved

Only because of the shortage of beds for the mentally ill is the Acropolis mental hospital used as a hospital, Deputy Health Minister Yitzhak Raphael told the Knesset on Tuesday.

Replying to a question by Mr. Hanan Rubin (Mapai), he said that the hospital, which had been extended in the name of the President of the Federal Republic.

The delegation studied teaching methods in vocational schools in Holland, France, Italy, and West Germany. On their return they submitted a report to the Ministry of Education.

The delegation consisted of Messrs. Y. Avigad, G. Bergson, Y. Glat, and P. Zilberblat.

Transistor Rights To Two Electronics Firms

Both the Ran-Tadit and the Elko companies will be permitted to set up their own transistor plants, the Minister of Commerce and Industry ruled yesterday.

Mr. Sapir gave his decision on the basis of a report by a committee set up to study the problem.

Earlier this year Elko had charged that the equipment purchased by Ran-Tadit for its transistor plant was unsuitable, and should therefore not be supported by the Government. The Ministry of Defence is a partner in the latter firm.

The export committee was set up to rule on the opposing claims of the two firms.

Hagana Spirit Still Needed

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Though the Army has supplanted the Hagana, the underground's voluntary spirit was still in great demand, Prime Minister Ben-Gurion said Tuesday night in Jerusalem.

Addressing the annual Hagana celebrations of the Jerusalem branch of the Hagana veterans' Association at the Kings' Hotel he proposed that each member should "adopt" a new immigrant family, and so help newcomers' absorption through mutual visits to homes, and by sharing their trials and successes.

The Hagana party was addressed because of Mr. Ben-Gurion's imminent departure for Burma. The Premier was in a reminiscent mood as he addressed the 450 veterans and their wives.

Mr. Avraham Rimmon, chairman of the Organization, announced that the Jerusalem Municipality had allotted a site behind the Solei Boneh building in Gan Hatza'at for Hagana, whose construction will commence shortly. A memorial to Ya'akov Patil, Hagana Commander of Jerusalem, will be erected at a spot between Ma'ale Hamahmash and Kiryat Anavim, he said.

Guests were also delivered by Mayor Ish-Shalom.

No Permit for New Chamber Theatre

POST Economic Reporter

Police headquarters in Tel Aviv have rejected a suggestion by the Minister of Interior Mr. Moshe Haim Shapira, to issue a temporary permit allowing the Chamber Theatre to use its new premises for a six-month period.

It is learnt from the Ministry spokesman.

The new theatre hall has been refused a licence because it does not conform to safety regulations.

To meet police requirements, the theatre would have to lay out a central aisle, doing away with some 70 seats. Present thinking among some specialists, however, is that a central aisle is unnecessary and may in fact, during an emergency, constitute a bottleneck.

However, the Ministry considers some of the regulations to be obsolete, and a committee headed by Mr. David Kotlar, of the Planning Division, has worked out a series of amendments which await legislative sanction.

There is practically no new public building in Israel which does in fact conform to the present regulations.

Mr. Kotlar added that better fire-prevention and fire-fighting equipment, and the fact that cine-reels are no longer inflammable has made it possible to relax safety regulations for cinemas and public halls.

"FOOLISH"—The Soviet Foreign Ministry yesterday dismissed as "foolish talk" reports abroad that former President Klement Voroshilov had committed suicide.

LEAFLETS.—One million copies of a leaflet opposing the British Government's plans to restrict Commonwealth immigration are to be distributed throughout Britain, Fenner Brockway, Labour MP, said in London yesterday.

LOAN.—The Bank of Greece is advancing an interest-free loan of 11.5m. to bolster the economic operations of the Hellenic group of companies in Cyprus.

US Gov't Halts Sale of Silver

WASHINGTON (AP).—President Kennedy on Tuesday night ordered a stop to the U.S. Government sale of silver from its stockpiles. He also restricted use of Treasury reserves for coinage.

In issuing these instructions to Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Mr. Kennedy said the steps would "contribute to the maintenance of an orderly market in silver."

Mr. Dillon had recommended the moves in the face of a declining supply of silver in Government hands and the lack of offers from mines and holders of silver to sell the metal to industrial users at the Government price of 90.5 cents an ounce.

The Government moves are expected to lead to a rise in the market price of the metal, probably to about $1 an ounce.

ISRAEL AT THE U.N. (I)

BATTLES IN THE WORLD

UNITED NATIONS.

Twelve men and two women comprise Israel's delegation to the current General Assembly of the United Nations. The delegation is smaller than in previous years, since it includes no Members of Knesset.

The delegation's work is divided in broad terms into two parts. The first is behind the scenes: meetings with other delegations, and there are now 102 of them, explaining Israel's position on Arab refugees and other broad and better questions. The second part — and this is the subject of this brief resume — is the public speeches and votes of the Israel delegation on the 100 odd items of the Assembly's agenda. This is the battlefield of peace on earth, good-will to men.

The delegation's work begins at a delegation meeting every morning convened at nine o'clock sharp by Ambassador Michael Comay, head of the delegation when Mrs. Meir is not here, and does not end until many hours after the last cocktail has been consumed at a diplomatic reception. During the first two months of the Assembly there have been dinner parties and diplomatic receptions almost every evening, after which the delegates were free to spend some time in the office reading and answering mail or preparing a speech for the following day. Since mid-November there have been evening sessions almost every day in an attempt — probably vain — to finish the long agenda by December 20.

With committee meetings morning, afternoon and evening, the delegates have been putting in a 16 to 20 hour day. There are seven committees numbered from one to six plus the Special Political Committee which takes up the overflow from the First or Political Committee. This Special Committee, to which the Arab refugee question is assigned each year, was originally called the Ad Hoc Political Committee, but after ad hocing for almost a decade it was made more or less permanent.

No Respite for Israelis

The work of the Assembly is done in these seven committees. On each the Israel delegates take an active part in the discussion. As on any parliamentary body, many of the seats are vacant during much of the debate, but the Israel seat is always filled. There is no such thing as a lull in the debate for Israel, because one of the ten Arab delegations may at any time attack Israel no matter what subject is on the agenda. The old joke about "the elephant and the Jewish problem" — that the elephant is the Arab and the Jewish problem is the elephant — has been grasped by the Arabs to bring Palestine into the discussion.

Answering these attacks is necessary but often a futile gesture. The Arabs usually manage to get in the last word — there are so many of them, for one thing, and the presiding officer, President of the Assembly Mongi Slim of Tunisia, has not been a model of impartiality.

The other night at an evening plenary session on the subject of colonialism, Dr. Muhammad H. El-Farra of Jordan declared on the "colonial invasion of Palestine and the chosen people." For an Arab the wording was mild. Probably Ambassador Comay would not have bothered to reply, but he was scheduled to speak that night and because other Arabs during this debate had to get the floor again at this point, he probably would not have been recognized, but even if Mr. Slim had given him the floor, most of the sleepy-eyed delegates would have resented the prolongation of the debate. The session adjourned at 11:34 p.m.

Women Delegates

An earlier exchange had taken place that afternoon in the Third Committee between Mrs. Shulamit Nardi of Israel and Mrs. Hazami Fekini of Libya. Though the subject under discussion was the annual report of the Economic and Social Council, Mrs. Fekini suddenly began reading a clipping from "The New York Times" describing conditions of the Arabs in Israel. She skipped over the paragraphs which told of their political and economic gains but read into the record the fact that many of Israel's Arabs lived under military rule, had no civil courts and suffered job discrimination.

Mrs. Nardi replied that Mrs. Fekini had "grossly misquoted" the "Times" report and that if the Libyan delegate would pay a visit to Israel she would see the economic prosperity now reigning in the Arab villages.

Mrs. Fekini, exercising her right of reply, said that she was only quoting from "The New York Times," a newspaper which, in her opinion, had always favored the Zionists.

The women delegates may have been polite but their male colleagues but the outcome was no more positive. Arguing publicly with the Arabs in every committee of the Assembly, you feel like a skin-diver with only a few seconds of air left in his tank facing a row of octopi. The diver has neither enough time nor enough air to take them all on.

(This is the first of two articles.)

INTO THE JUNGLE

YESTERDAY'S PRESS

JOHNSON REPORT

HABOKER (Liberal), commenting on the fact that changes were made in the first version of the Johnson report at the request of the Arabs, writes: "The passive attitude of our Foreign Ministry, in contrast to the aggressive activity of the Arab States, caused us another defeat. Even if we were to agree that the beginning of his work does not have any practical significance, Dr. Johnson's very willingness to surrender to the Arabs at the beginning of his work arouses serious anxiety and indicates the dangers awaiting us as the discussion on the refugees continues."

Hatzefee (National Religious) writes: "The changes in the Johnson report... indicate the readiness of Dr. Johnson and the Government to surrender to Arab pressure and blackmail and to what extent the revived Palestine Conciliation Commission, which adopts an objective, realistic and effective approach to the Palestine problem."

Herut, commenting on the changes made by General Dragunski and other Soviet spokesmen, writes: "There is no point in arguing with them, particularly in view of the fact that while they are trying to clear the Soviet regime of the charge that it is persecuting Jews, reality serves to disprove their statements. We are certain that the leaders of the regime know that... arrests and even death sentences... will not destroy deep-seated desires of millions of Jews to join their brethren in their historic Homeland."

Al Hamishmar (Mapam) writes: "There are increasing indications that Soviet Jews want to have the same type of national life as other peoples — and are not allowed to have it. As long as this is the case, it would be incorrect to speak about a 'natural process of assimilation', but of a contrary process of Jewishness."

Hamodia (Agudat Yisrael) writes: "It is impossible to know why the Soviets have decided to renounce their campaign of repression against Jews at the time when regulations affecting other peoples and nationalities in the Soviet Union are being relaxed. But it appears that the Soviets fear that the relaxations will arouse feelings of Jewishness in the hearts of the Jews."

Davar (Histadrut) says that the plan of the Ministry of Agriculture for the development of Arab and Druse villages "will undoubtedly be warmly received by all Israelis, and not only by those directly affected." After mentioning the many projects already carried out to develop these villages, the paper adds: "Despite the considerable amount that has been accomplished, it is still very little in comparison to the needs that remain. The development work that has been carried out until now and the plans for the future discussed are a convincing answer to the unending and poisonous statements of the Arab representatives in the UN about the 'ghetto' that Israel has supposedly established for her Arab citizens."

Protein-Pecking Chickens Prefer Soya

By DAVID KRIVINE

EXCEPT for Vitamin C, chickens need much the same nutrients as human beings, including protein, and the cheapest source of protein is the soy bean. This explains why the joint hosts to a seminar on Poultry Husbandry held this week in the Tadmor Hotel are the Soybean Council of Israel, Israeli Office and the World Poultry Science Association (Israel Branch).

Fish meal is also a cheap protein but less good of its nutritional value when denuded for human consumption. The soy bean is so important to the under-nourished areas of the world that a network of international organizations are bending all efforts to fostering its consumption. Yet supply still lags behind. The biggest producer is the U.S., which is encouraging farmers to grow soy beans instead of other food surpluses, by raising the minimum support price to $2.30 a bushel. As 70m bushels have been exported this year in the States, the value of this output would be $160m — except that the market price is running in fact well ahead of the $2.30 minimum.

Chief customers for the crop are not human beings, but chickens. This is no loss, since the chickens and/or their eggs are themselves eaten by human beings. The hen's menu is complex, and has been discussed scientifically in papers delivered at the Herut's seminar. Diet sheets for the baryard even vary (slightly) according to whether the object is to eat the chicken or the egg.

Israel is one of the rare countries that have made the consumption of soy protein practically compulsory by law. Of all the bread, brown, white, whole-grained, or crumbed by readers of The Jerusalem Post, 3 per cent consists of soya. During the drought of two years ago, a specially nourishing pitta containing 10 per cent soya was issued to Beduin of the Negev. Blue Band is marketed products containing 10-15 per cent of soya — a dry mix for falafel, and a combination of humus and tahina. A plate that contained soya beans which looked almost exactly like baked beans, only rounder, was laid on the high table at the seminar luncheon last Tuesday. This reporter found them succulent — very much like Heinz baked beans, only less fatty in taste and slightly sweeter.

Among the persons that took a spoonful was Dr. G.F. Combs, Professor of Poultry Nutrition at Maryland University — expert also in human nutrition, which he has investigated at the head of missions in Ecuador and Korea. He believes that the seminar is proving to be of exceptional value, because it is of a comfortable size, neighbourly, intimate, and deals with the immediate problems of the participants, unlike the more majestic conferences held in the world's big capitals. Urgent technical questions that deal with the day-to-day life of underprivileged people are best handled in regional gatherings, he said.

A spoonful of the baked soya beans was also tasted by Mr. Kumar, head of the Soya Council in India. Brother of a wealthy maharaja, he owns a 110-acre farm near Bombay, and devotes his time, thought and energy to promoting better nutrition among his countrymen. His ideal is that every Indian should eat an egg a day. Even so modest an objective, however, would require organizing and equipping a gigantic army of broody hens and chancieries capable of producing 170,000m eggs a year. Yet India does not even grow enough soya for its existing chicken population.

MARGINAL COMMENT

A DOG'S LIFE

By Fay Doron

NOW that the political youth movement is so busy with the schools and the framework within which they will work is to be discussed, perhaps this is as good a time as any to put forward a modest proposal. This would be to suggest that all such movements be directed to include among their activities some instruction, not only in civilized attitudes of behavior in general but also on the humane treatment of animals.

We in Israel can feel justly proud of our country's fine record of achievements in the intellectual, military and technical fields. But we should hang our heads in shame for our lack of understanding of the animal world. That there are some Israelis who are concerned about our inadequacies in this respect is revealed in the occasional letters appearing in the columns of this newspaper and by the valiant struggle for existence put up by the Animal Welfare Societies in the various cities.

NOT that we need go to the lengths of becoming anti-vivisectionists or raising an outcry at the thought of dogs and monkeys being sent into outer space. All that is necessary is to create a climate of public opinion in which a child or an adult, for that matter, who is cruel to an animal will realize that he is doing something wrong. Instruction on kindness — or at least lack of cruelty — to animals should be included in the curricula of the schools, and should not be limited to kindergarten or first grade. A lead in this State Religious Schools and all schools in Beersheba.

It may not be possible within one generation to turn every Israeli into a lover of animals, but it should not prove totally impossible to restore a respect for our ancient teachings which laid down admirable rules of conduct for the care of animals, as a letter in an adjoining column points out. Kicking a dog, throwing stones at a cat, beating unmercifully the small patient donkey — all reveal a primitive animism which must be controlled by law in a progressive society. And in the field of legislation of this kind, Israel lags shamefully behind. For any one who thinks that this is pointless sentimentalism in a world where animals are slaughtered for food, and even humans not treated too well, let them ask any psychologist: A child that learns consideration for a helpless animal will graduate naturally to regard for helpless humans. One that enjoys torturing a dog or cat will ill-treat smaller children as well, and anyone else weaker than himself.

WHAT the Animal Protection Societies would like to see, apart from instruction in the schools, is the enactment of a proper Animal Code designed to bring some humanity into the handling of animals. The law should not only define maltreatment but should permit the police to act by levying on the spot fines whenever they are called in to deal with brutality.

Cruelty to animals is not confined to the little boy who ties an old tin can to a dog's tail or who amuses himself by shooting at a bird with his catapult. Draught animals are badly overloaded, beaten and harnessed over seas. Proper legislation would require such animals and their carts to be licensed. Again, though it is necessary in a country where rabies is endemic to control stray dogs, this should be done in a humane manner. Stray animals should not be shot out of hand in the public view, nor should poison bait be laid so indiscriminately that domestic pets are found dead. This could be avoided by a sane rabies policy. There should be some regulation of the trade in stray cats which are caught for experimental purposes and there should be control over the manner in which these animals are treated before reaching the laboratories. These are but a few of the measures which need to be taken.

"LOVE me, love my dog" may not be a reasonable norm of behaviour to expect from people for whom a barking dog may have once heralded a pogrom. But at least we can attempt over the years to nurture in our children if not affection for animals, then at least a regard for the unprotected that is a sign not of softness, but of strength.

Readers' Letters

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS

Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — I fully agree with your reader's letter of November 9 regarding the mistreatment of animals in Israel. I was happy to read, in a previous letter, that the Ministry of Education was giving instructions to schools to teach children kindness to animals.

However, not only must children be taught this principle in school but the home and the kibbutzim must also educate children from early childhood to make friends with pets. It is the task of parents to tell children what the Torah says about the treatment of animals — that it is strictly forbidden to torture an animal; that you may not have your meal before you feed your animals (Berachot 40a).

So long as passersby look on unmoved without interfering, when children are cruel to animals, we cannot boast of our high cultural standards.

Yours, etc.
(MRS.) J. GRAHAM

LURID POSTERS

Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — After spending a most interesting four weeks in your wonderful country, I feel I must ask why sex-related films with lurid posters and display stills are shown everywhere.

I felt this particularly when staying in Rehovot, where today I saw a poster for a film titled "MIFAL HAPAT" (The Part of the Night).

Award of the Nansen Prize

OF IL 1,000

The Prize which is to be a one-time award, will be given for a research project on the subject: "Nansen's Contribution to Constructive Solutions of Refugee Problems"

Israelis up to the age of 35, possessing M.A. degrees from Israel or abroad, will be eligible to submit research on the above-mentioned subject.

Work, in questionnaire, should be submitted to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, Jerusalem, by July 31, 1962.

I Swear to you

Citizens, Representatives, as you see, the Republic cries out and your demand is for deliverance. Woe to those who sought tumult and confusion.
